A Municipal Band

HONGKONG has always been musically appreciative, but never musically conscious enough to stimulate the formation and sustenance of a Town Band or Municipal Orchestra. Old residents will remember how the crowds flocked to the City Hall, and later the King's Theatre and Star Theatre to hear world-famous instrumentalists, vocalists and choirs such as Moiseivitch. Heifetz, Rubenstein, Kube-Chaliapin and the Westminster Glee Singers. and since the war visiting musicians and local orchestras have attracted full h-d u s e s. Nevertheless. CO-STAR

Beauty, talent and mutual liking create a bond between this lovely actress, Andree Debar, and the white Perslan kitten, Saha. They both have important parts in the episode "Envy" from the continental Illim "The Seven Sins."

"Envy," starring Andree Debar and Orfen Tamburi and directed by Roberto Rossellini, is adapted from the novel "The Cat" by Colette. The story is about a beautiful young French girl whose marriage to a middle-aged Italian painter is disrupted by her jealousy of the husband's much-loved pet kitten.—Reuterphoto.

Master horologist's dream is realized— 104 years after his death

A BRAM-LOUIS PERRELET, of Lo A Locie, in Switzerland, was born in 1729 and died in 1826. He was a watchmaker. A great watchmaker. And, greatest of his achievements, perhaps, was the invention of a self-winding watch. This pedometer, or Jerkwinding pocket-watch, inspired men like Breguet and Recordon to emulate him, and set the direction of research into the self-winding principle for the next hundred years.

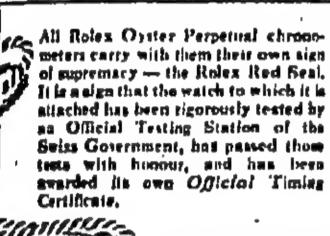

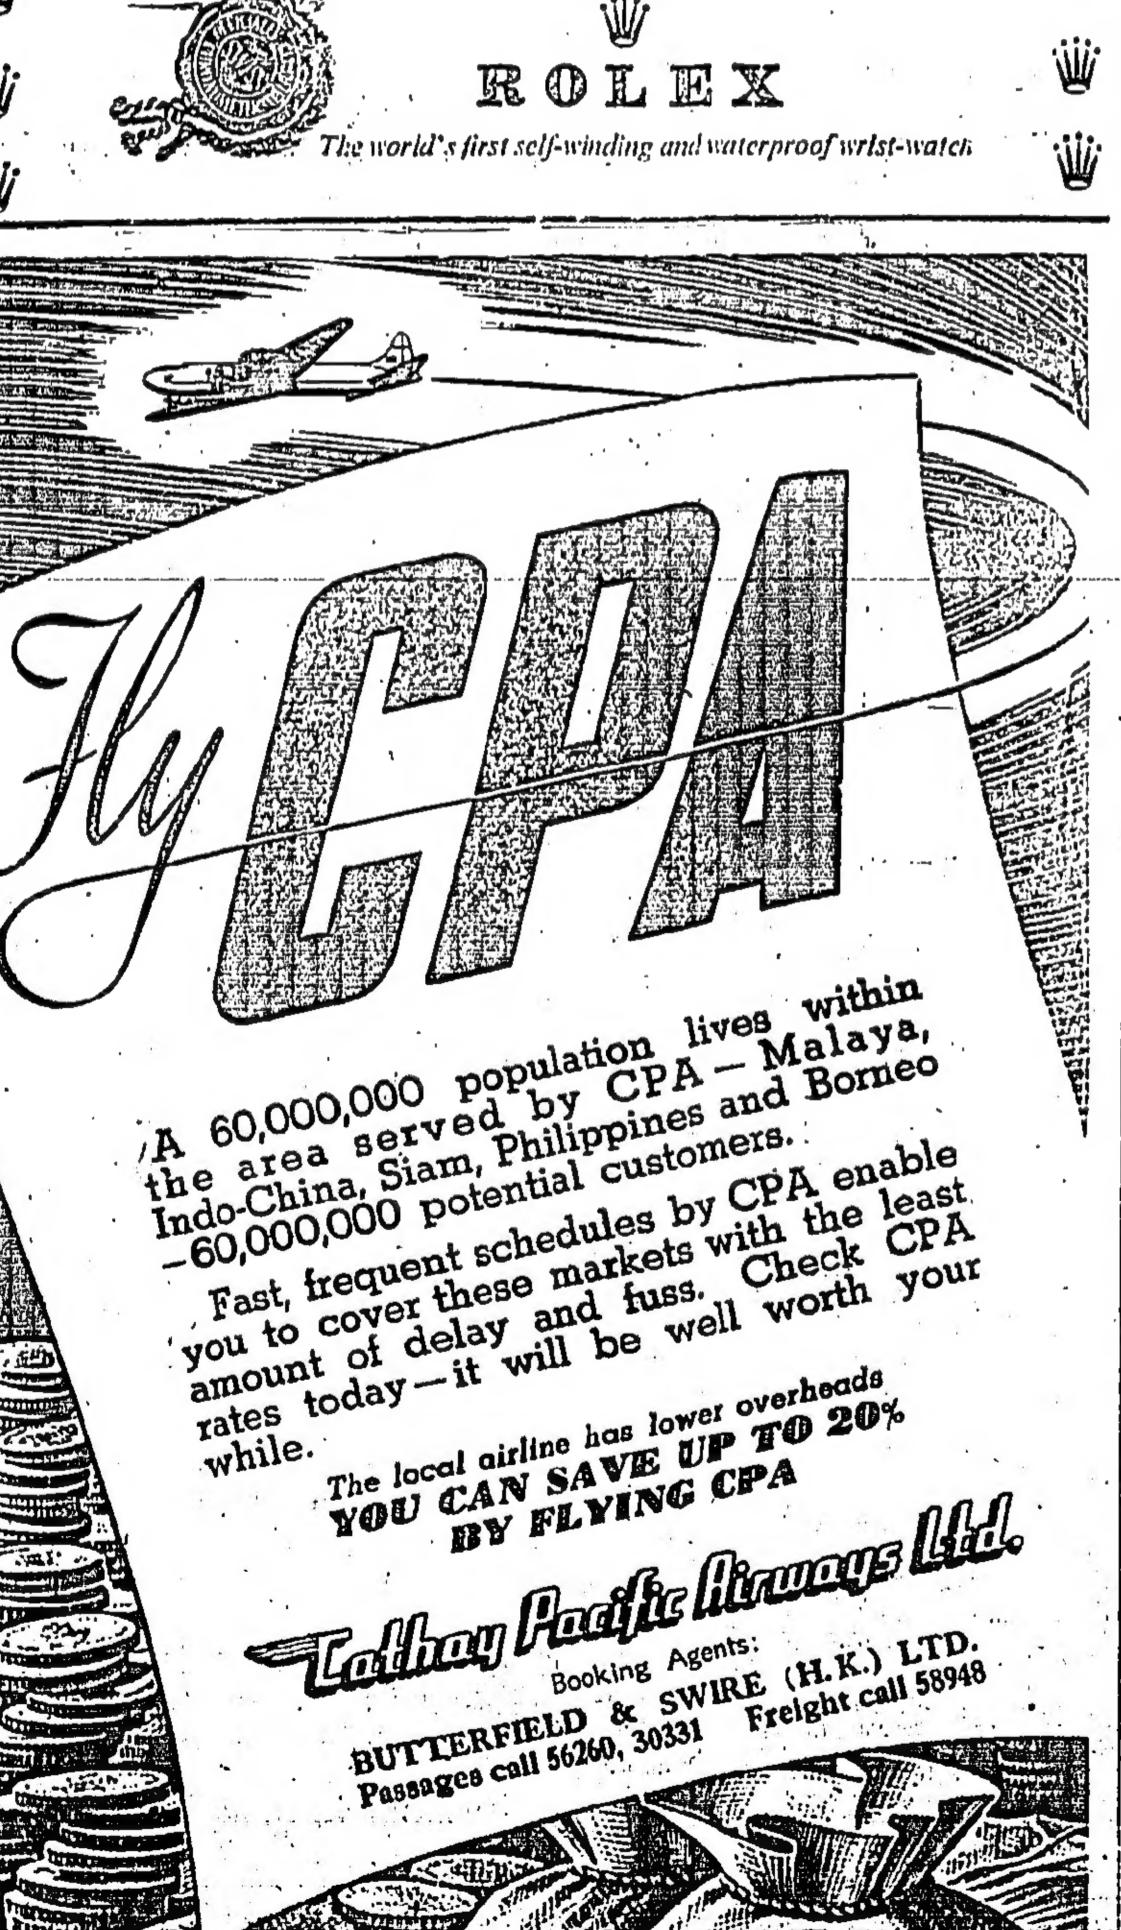

A typical pedometer watch, inspired by Abram-Louis Perrelet's prototype. None of the waither made by him has survived.

But Perrelet's pocket-watch, though it wound itself, was not the final answer. The constant jerking told hard on the mechanism, and although perfect in theory, in practice the jerkwinder's shortcomings doomed it to failure from the start.

Different applications of the principle were used; different, often fantastic, types of watch made their appearance. But for two centuries after Perrelet's birth, no one had bettered his achievement; no one had produced a really practical self-winding self-winding watch was realized at last! The Rolex 'Rotor', as the new selfwinding mechanism was called, was patented in 1931, and answered all the demands made upon it. Here at last was the true selfwinding watch: the Oyster Perpetual.

A. semi-circle of metal revolving on its own axis, the Rotor obviated all the thags of the old hammer-jerks, and with its coming the first true self-winding wristwatch - the Oyster Perpetual - was born. The motion of the wrist, acting on the Rotor, means that worn for only 6 hours a day, the watch will never

New York. LOT of the architec-H tural experts look down their T-squares at the plastic dome as the house of the future.

George Nelson, a noted architect, teacher and designer, told the International Home Furnishings Market in Chicago that the "modern" house is on its "Future homes will be a container'," said Nelson, "a precisely engineered and manufactured shell, providing space to serve the requirements of the occupants."

Some architects thought the Nelson house looked like a bubble. Others called it "a crystal ball sliced in half."

"The idea makes wonderful reading, but it's horrible architecture," said Edgar Tafel, a New York architect who was with the famous Frank Lloyd Wright for nine

Wright would say only, "George . Is a good furniture i designer. I don't know anything about his architecture."

Several architects and interior decorators doubted whether Mrs Housewife would "go for" the bubble home.

Calls It Fishbowl

"I'll tell you," said Beatrice West, who has done the colour planning for several large housing projects. "Women just | ---don't accept radical things easily. A lot of 'em still rebel against picture vivindows . . . saying they feet like they're living in a fishbowl, Well, you can imagine how they'd feel in that clear bubble."

Asked if she'd like to decorate Nelson's house of the future. Mirs West commented, I'll try anything once. But I wonder where I would put curtain rods."

Dr Leopold Arnaud, dean of architecture at Columbia University, was "rather sception!"

New York. WORESIDENT TRUMAN. Ins come to the conclusion' that his guess last January that U.S. business would pay £9,833,000,000 tuxes to the Treasury this year, was much too high.

The total, he now thinks, will be nearer 28,000,000,000. The reason: a heavy, fall in earnings -hown in the half-year tatements of many thouand of U.S. firms.

. The President has been to dving the companies' reoerts to their stockholders with especial attention; and a uniching them against Treasury reports of tax collections.

He has found that the reduction in the amount of taxes paid or due has been widesprend throughout industry, though some sections are showing better results than the average.

Tax liability of manufacturing companies are running some 13 percent behind a year ago, reflecting much lower gross returns before taxes.

Strikes, rising labour costs, dearer materials and lower sales (often at prices controlled at a not-too-profitable level) are all playing their part.

some industries that were hard and in the first part of the year leak for better results in the e.ond.

The mammoth Eastman Kodak Company, for instance, report a 21 percent drop in net earnings for the 24 weeks ended June 15, attributing it to two main causes: 1-Poor sales in the textile field, and 2-defence orders, which are less profitable than civilian business.

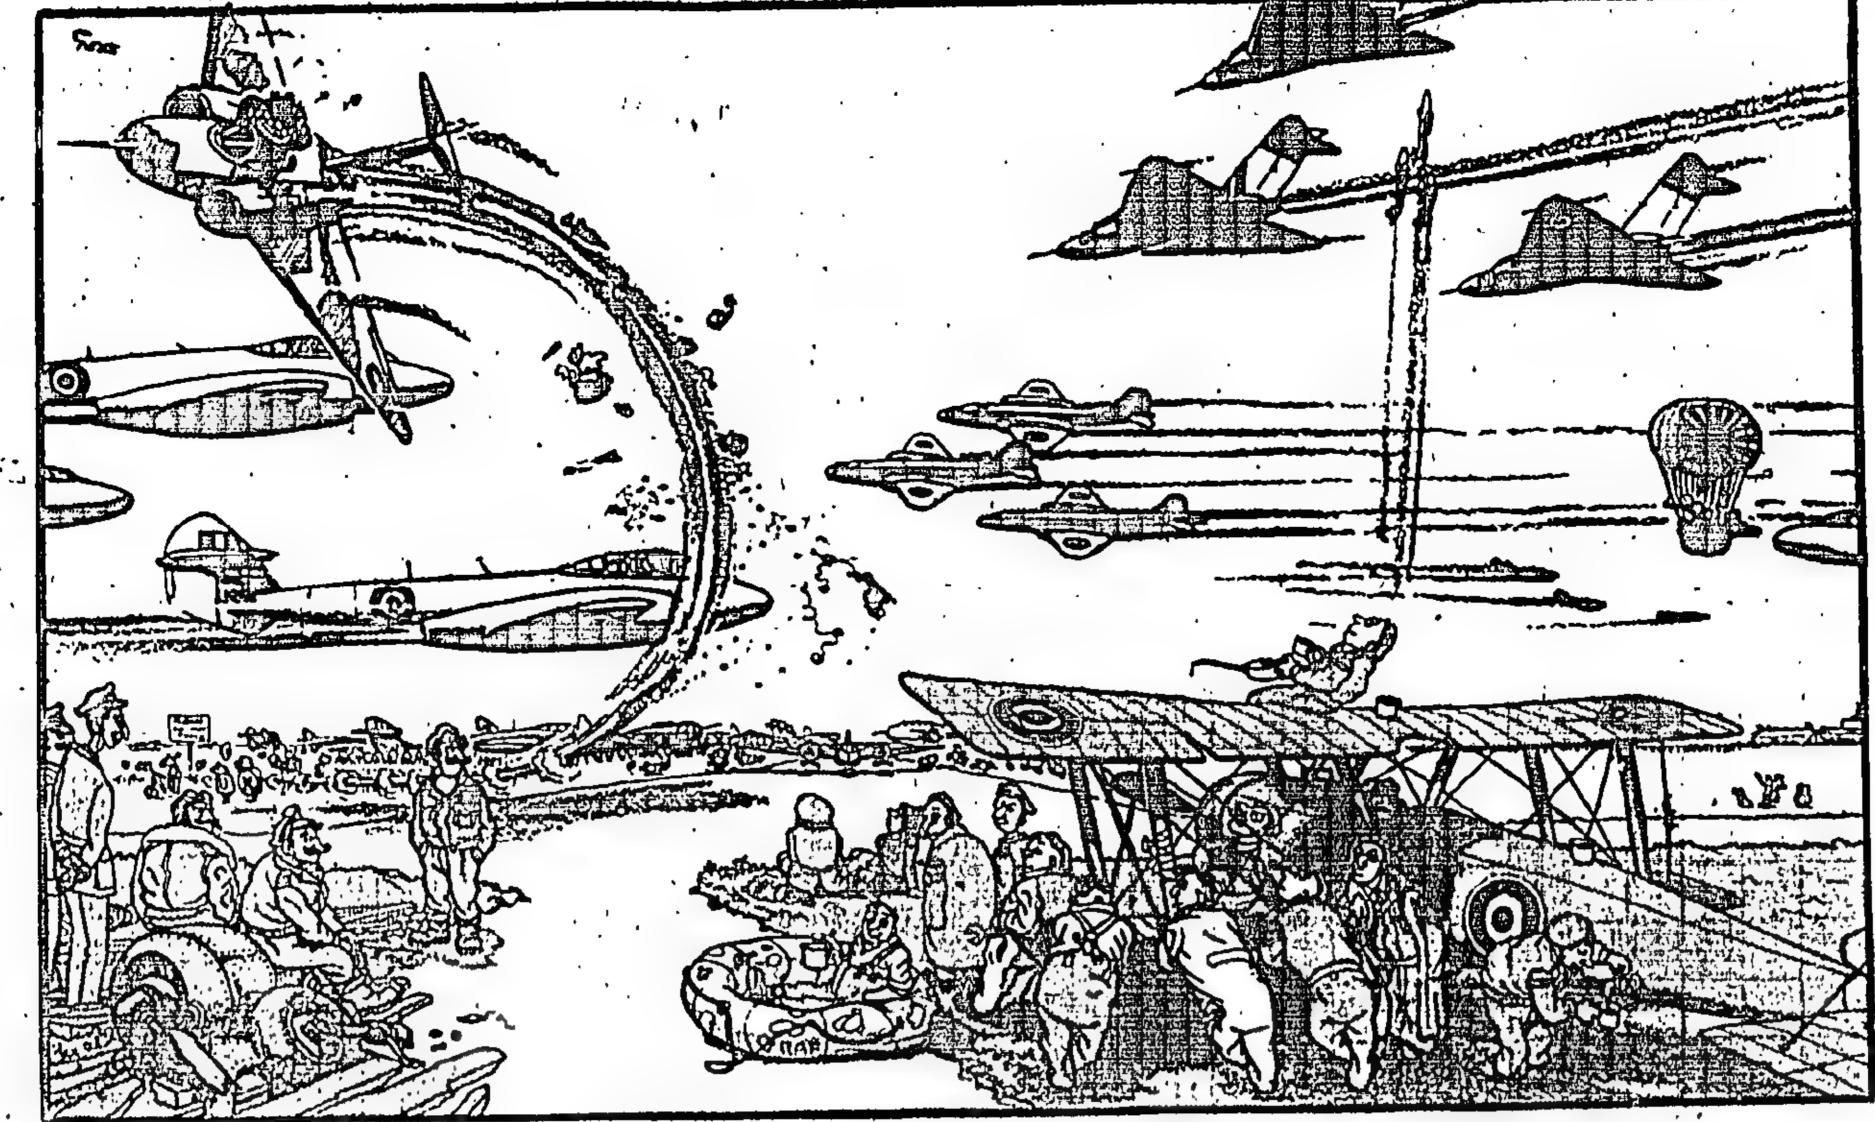

But, said Mr Thomas J Hargrave, chairman, the secondhalf outlook is brighter. U.S. textile companies and clothing manufacturers as a group showed in the first halfyear a fail of about 60 percent in net profits. But by midsummer the tide had turned for them.

For such remarks he was called "a clever and bitter Jew." He was for years listed in the Jewish Who's Who, laughed every time that book of reference was published. He is not a Jew.

When the 1914-18 war came that his sophisticated magazine, The Smart Set, would lose with a magazine called Saucy Stories.

'After the war he launched' the American Mercury as a kindof tank onslaught on his country's way of life. One story, about the alleged aphrodisiac effects of revivalist sermons, got the magazine banned in Boston, Mencken sold a copy in a Boston street to the chief local censor. He was instantly arrested.

The judge decreed that, as the evidence was of an obscene nature, all testimony must be given in whispers. In spite of this 'unpromising start, and to his own astonishment, Mencken was acquitted.

On the day his friends assembled to taste this marvel, it all blew up. At a party, he and his purtner, George Jean Nathan, the dramatic critic, were accosted by a red-headed drunk who said, "So you guys are critics, are you? Well, let me tell you something. I am the best goddam writer in this here goddam country." Next day, Mencken found a manuscript from this horror on his desk. From Baltimore he wrote to Nathan: "Grab hold of the bar-rail; steady yourself. By God, that lump has done the job. ON THE MOON?

By LEE PRIESTLEY

*7HEN rockets travel to IV the moon, we may be able to check the legends ! that tell who lives there. For thousands of years there has been a world-wide difference of opinion.

American and European children believe that the spots and shadows on the moon's gleaming surface are the features of the Man in the Moon. He was once woodcutter, so legend tells, who insisted on working on Sundays. So he was snatched up to the moon where all days are alike. If you look closely you may see that he still carries a bundle of wood on his back.

YOUR BINTEDAY... IN STELLA DUMB-DELLS

BORN today, you are one of those who is happiest if constantly active and busy at something. It need not be anything important—just so long as you are on the move. This desire for excitement and adventure may need to be curbed, for you might go around in circles and not get anywhere. Children of this dog's sign are very active and difficult, at times, to control. It, however, they are properly guided into constructive activity they can become exceptionally successful in adult life. Once the lesson of concentration on one objective is mastered, there are no heights to which you may not ampire.

In many ways, there is a touch of genius in your make up and with it is the temperament that often goes slong with the creative with it is the temperament that often goes along with the creative artist. Self-discipline is necessary if you are to reach the goal to which you no doubt aspire, Literature, music and the arts make the greatest appeal to you. Yet, if you are forced into business or finance, the changes are that you will make a success of that as well. It will be because of your originality of approach that you are able to reach the top.

You are popular with both sexes and will have a host of friends. There is a spiritual and contemplative side to your nature which may come as rather a surprise to those who know you only casually as the centre of a social group. There are times when your temperainent demands that you be alone. The one you wed must understand this. But at other times, you cannot bear to be alone and want galety and lots of society. For, complete happiness, your marriage partner must understand both sides of your nature.

着INTELLIGENCE器TEST FOUR COLOURS

By T. O. HARE A REGULAR tetrahedron—it will be recalled—is a solid figure having four faces, each face an equilatoral triangle. I have a number of such solids, identical in size, I propose to paint one face of each tetrahedron red; one face, rellow; one face, blue; the fourth face, green, in the centre of each face there is to be a small circle, each circle of the same size, coloured differently from the face itself; and the four colours—red, yellow, blue, green—are to be used for the four circles of each tetrahedron.

How many tetrahadra can t produce which are dis-tinguishable from one another?

Week To Wait

ROBABLY it was as the old lady said. In her peregrinations round the West End she had lost a pound note. So when, in a store, she came upon a handbag she liked that was priced at roughly £1. more than was left in her purse, she knew what to do. She atole the bag.

There was a fuddled logic in it. She, through misfortune, had lost £1. What more just, she reasoned, no doubt, than similar misfortune should visit the store?

She was not a very thief, not greatly daring, nor as brazen as some women are when they give their minds to an enterprise. times she had the bag in her hands; three times at the vital moment she lost her nerve and returned it to the display counter.

By the time she had plucked up courage for a fourth attempt it seems likely that the eyes of everyone in the department were upon her. Certainly those of a store detective were.

The old lady, whose name was Myrtle, made off with her prize, and the detective followed her into the street and challenged her ownership

JEXT day at Great Marlborough Street before Mr E. G. Robey, Myrtle pleaded guilty to the theft.

She is the kind of little old woman that Mothers' Day posters portray. She is a widow, 72 years old, and a kind of strength shows through her apparent frailty. Her features have set into sad lines, but once, you imagine, she knew laughter, and still—were there occasion for it—could smile occasion for it—could s sweetly. "There is one previous conviction for obtaining cedit by fraud," a police_ officer told the magistrate, and you wondered what fraud the old lady could ever have perpetrated. "There are also many convictions for drunkenness. understand from Mrs Gray that she is on probation from another court"

TARS Gray, the probation IVI officer, stepped forward and said that was so; and she explained about Myrtle's crime of obtaining credit by fraud. One day, it seems, Myrtle had treated herself to a meal costing 19s. 9d., and then had been unable to pay the bill

"Her present employer is in court," Mrs Gray said, "and would like to speak for her. She stood down, and into the witness-box came a handsome man who looked puzzled and said: "I can say this, when she went out yesterday afternoon she did have money enough to pay for the bag. She has only been with us a month, but we have found her very trustworthy. She has been left alone in the flat over week-ends, and everything has been in order.".

"No signs of heavy drinking?" the magistrate asked. "Not until yesterday," was the answer. "Are you going to keep her wife. I can't speak for that, owing to certain circumstances in the house." Myrtle's employer said. "I personally would like to keep her on."

MAYRTLE, by now was, sob-IVI bing, Silent, heavy, sobs that shook the whole of her frame. She dabbed her eyes with a handkerchief that she held in a hand that was tremblingly out of control., ...

"This sort of thing can't go on," Mr Robey said to her.
"I'm quite satisfied that drink; is at the back of your trouble. I shall remand you on ball for a week. By then I shall know about your 1 job, and what the other court wants to do about your probation."

They showed Myrtle out, and sobbing she went, to tremble and wait for a week for judgment to be pronounced - by the wife of her employer; by the other court; by Mr Robey at Great Marlborough Street. It would not be an easy week

Appeals Unavailing

Tracing Missing Men Geneva, Sept. 12. the co-operation of Russia.

Judge Gustavo Guerrero, of El Salvador, President of the Commission, said in closing the third session that repeated appeals to Russia had not availed. He added:

"The Commission has, with great regret, come to the conclusion that, lacking this cooperation, it will not be able to carry out the essential task for which it was created."

The Commission, boycotted by Russia since its creation by the Assembly in 1950, was to "settle the question of the prisoners of war in a purely humanitarian spirit and on terms acceptable to all the governments concerned."

Judge Guerrero said that the Commission will report to the United Nations in time for the Assembly -- next -- month. He stated: "The Commission darcs to hope that a new and urgent appeal for international cooperation-an appeal addressed to the humanitarian spirit of all governments-will permit it o pursue its work.

"If this last hope is not realised the Commission intends covering the entire scope of its British House of Commons.
